

TIJWUN CARE AND EMPOWERMENT FOUNDATION (TIJCEF)

ANNUAL REPORT 2025

Advancing Health, Gender Equity, Climate Action, and Research

1. FOUNDERS' NOTE

When I saw adolescent girls missing school because they could not afford menstrual pads, I understood that dignity is not a luxury; it is the starting line. TijCEF was born from that conviction, and from a refusal to accept that any girl in Nigeria should be left behind by silence, stigma, or circumstance.

This year, that conviction continued to guide our work across communities, strengthening access to health education, gender equity, climate action, and research-driven solutions that support long-term community transformation.

2. ABOUT TIJCEF

Tijwun Care and Empowerment Foundation (TIJCEF) is a community-driven nonprofit organization working to improve lives through integrated programs in health, gender equity, climate action, and research.

We focus on strengthening community systems that promote dignity, resilience, and opportunity for women, youth, and adolescent girls.

3. VISION

A resilient Nigeria where women and youth, especially adolescent girls, have equitable access to health, climate knowledge, and opportunities to thrive, lead, and build sustainable communities.

4. MISSION

To empower women and youth through community-based health education, menstrual dignity support, climate action initiatives, and research-driven programs that strengthen wellbeing, resilience, and future opportunities.

5. OUR FOUR PILLARS

Health

We promote menstrual health and community wellbeing through education, awareness, and dignity-based interventions that improve access to essential hygiene knowledge and support.

Gender Equity

We advance inclusion and empowerment by equipping girls and young people with knowledge, confidence, and leadership opportunities to participate fully in society.

Climate Action

We promote environmental sustainability through climate awareness, community engagement, and actions that encourage responsible interaction with the environment.

Research

We apply research and evidence-based approaches to understand community needs, measure impact, and guide scalable, data-driven interventions.

6. IMPACT THIS YEAR

In this reporting year, TIJCEF directly reached over 1,200 individuals through its programs.

This brings our cumulative impact to over 8,500 people reached across our four pillars: health, gender equity, climate action, and research.

These interventions span menstrual health education, community engagement, environmental awareness activities, and research-informed programming.

7. PROGRAM HIGHLIGHTS

Health

We delivered menstrual health education and awareness programs aimed at reducing stigma, improving hygiene practices, and supporting dignity for adolescent girls and women.

Gender Equity

We implemented empowerment initiatives focused on building confidence, knowledge, and leadership capacity among girls and young people.

Climate Action

We engaged communities in environmental awareness activities that promote sustainability and responsible environmental practices.

Research

We strengthened data collection and learning processes to guide program design, evaluation, and evidence-based decision-making.

8. CHALLENGES AND LEARNINGS

Operating within resource-limited settings continues to present challenges in reach and scale. However, these experiences have strengthened our commitment to innovation, collaboration, and evidence-driven programming. We continue to learn that sustainable impact requires both community trust and strong partnerships.

9. FUTURE DIRECTION

In the coming year, TijCEF will:

- i. Expand menstrual health and dignity programs to more communities
- ii. Strengthen gender equity and youth empowerment initiatives
- iii. Scale climate action and environmental education programs
- iv. Deepen research capacity for data-driven impact
- v. Build stronger partnerships for sustainability and scale

10. CLOSING STATEMENT

TIJCEF remains committed to building a future where dignity is not negotiable and opportunity is not limited by circumstance.

We extend our gratitude to our partners, volunteers, and communities who continue to support this mission.

Together, we are advancing health, gender equity, climate action, and research for sustainable community transformation.
