Our Mission

TIJCEF is a Nigerian nonprofit working at the intersection of health, gender equity, climate action, and research. We design community-led programs that put adolescent girls, women, and young leaders at the center of their own futures—restoring dignity, expanding access, and strengthening community systems.

Founder & Executive Director

Emmanuel Sunday is the Founder and Executive Director of TIJCEF. A humanitarian advocate and community organizer, he leads TIJCEF's work across Nigeria—championing menstrual dignity, girl-child education, climate resilience, and evidence-based community development. His leadership has been featured in Vanguard, The Sun, and Independent Nigeria, and TIJCEF is recognized on the United Nations SDG Partnerships Platform.

Our Four Pillars

- Health & Wellbeing — Community health education and outreach for women and youth.
- Gender Equality & Menstrual Dignity — Ending period poverty so every girl can learn with dignity.

- Climate Action & Sustainability — Equipping youth to build resilient communities.
- Research, Monitoring & Evaluation — Evidence-driven programs grounded in local insight.

Impact Highlights

- 8,500+ girls and women reached through outreach and dignity programs.
- 14 communities engaged across Taraba, Adamawa, Plateau, and beyond.
- 12 community circles convened for participatory dialogue and learning.
- 8 climate campaigns mobilizing youth and tree-planting initiatives.
- 6 research projects informing menstrual health and WASH interventions.

Flagship Programs

- Pad-A-Girl Initiative — Menstrual health education and hygiene kit distribution in schools.
- Community Circles — Safe spaces for women, girls, and youth to shape program design.
- TIJCEF Journal of Community Development and Innovation — Open-access peer-reviewed research.
- TIJCEF Geospatial Intelligence System (TGIS) — Interactive impact and partner mapping.
